Our Preventative Services go beyond conventional offerings, presenting a comprehensive array of solutions for employers seeking both proactive and reactive measures to foster a healthy and productive workforce.

From impactful training courses and critical incident support to essential supervision, coaching, and mediation services, our Preventative Services have consistently demonstrated a substantial reduction in absenteeism, improved performance, and heightened engagement. Employees frequently report feeling valued by their employers, showcasing the efficacy of our preventative services.

Our collaborative approach extends across diverse industries, encompassing the NHS, government agencies, utilities, aerospace, rail, information technology, manufacturing, and distribution.

Recognising the unique challenges each sector faces, we tailor our services to meet specific needs, ensuring that our interventions resonate and address industry-specific nuances.

Our mission is not only to raise awareness of mental health but also to foster an inclusive workplace culture that champions the well-being of every employee. By actively engaging with our clients, we aim to create customised solutions that align with their organisational goals and contribute to the overall success of their workforce.

“Annually, we successfully deliver thousands of workshops, webinars and supervision sessions covering a broad spectrum of mental health topics”

Our sessions range from concise 30-minute discussions on stress management to immersive 2-day programs focused on mental health first aid and trauma management. We are committed to elevating mental health awareness, dismantling stigma, and addressing discrimination in the workplace. Choose Vita Health Group for comprehensive, tailored solutions that make a lasting impact on workplace well-being.

Support in the event of a Critical Incident

Online or On-Site • Half Day or Full Day Options

Vita Health Group are experienced in delivering support and advice in response to a critical incident or traumatic event in the workplace.

What does the support involve?

- Helping people to reduce their anxiety.
- Validating the natural emotional reactions to a shocking event.
- Helping people to determine what they need to do to look after themselves in the short term.
- Providing information about their EAP service and the 24/7 helpline support.
- Providing information about the natural psychological coping processes following an event, and when to seek further support.
- In line with NICE guidance for the prevention of PTSD, this is NOT psychological debriefing or any derivative form of this.

In the event of an incident, calls can be made to the helpline 24hrs a day, 7 days a week.

We also work with a team of Critical Incident responders who can deliver additional support to a team or workplace, either on-site or via virtual delivery, depending on your needs.

Managers can contact the helpline 24/7 to seek support following an incident, and they will be supported by a qualified counsellor, trained to provide evidence-based support and advice in the event of a critical incident.

Client Feedback

I reached out for support on a personal situation on a Sunday lunchtime. The level of support I received on behalf of a family member was exceptional and the care and attention the counsellor showed me was great, informative and above what I expected, I was contacted during the following week for additional support as needed. The response and overall care the team member showed me was fantastic.

In addition, we sadly lost a team member through a sudden and unfortunate death which had a terrible impact on the team

On-site Critical Incident Support
Our standard on-site critical incident response is delivered at least 72hrs following an incident.

This is in line with best practice, allowing space and time for the immediate natural psychological coping mechanisms of individuals to begin.

Where this on-site support is indicated one of our Critical Incident Responders can provide support to those individuals who may not have other support networks available or who need an independent person to talk to for support and evidence-based advice.

that worked with the deceased. We reached out to EAP and was immediately supported with on site counselling the following day, the counsellors spent the day and evening meeting with all team members providing support and advice over there grieving.

Overall the quick response and support for my team was so needed. The feedback from my team has been amazing and I recommend the use of this support for anyone in need”

Mediation in the workplace

Online or On-Site • Typically up to 10 Sessions

Mediation is one of the tools of conflict resolution. It is a process by which an independent impartial third party helps two or more people in conflict talk about their situation, exchange their concerns and work towards a resolution.

What types of issues are suitable for mediation?

- Issues that the parties have the power to resolve; Specific complaints about behaviour.
- Conflict that has resulted in allegation and counter-allegation.
- A breakdown in working relationships
- Conflicts within teams.
- Conflict between a manager and team members conflicts within the management team.
- Disputes between internal and or external stakeholders.

Confidentiality

Mediation is private, confidential and without prejudice, anything disclosed during the mediation is done so without prejudice and cannot be used in any future proceedings should the parties fail to reach agreement.

Client Feedback

“The most useful/helpful thing I would say is that I got to hear first hand how the other party was feeling about the issues that arisen and to see their side of things and take these on board.

The mediation process helped to ‘clear the air’ between the parties and move forward in a positive way and hopefully achieve a better working”.

It also made me realise that certain assumptions were made by both parties that were wrong and only exacerbated the situation further.

Mediation – how does it work?

The Mediator will meet each party separately and establish what the issues are for them. The mediator will explore expectations, clarify and address any concerns the party may have, and explain how the mediation process works. If the parties are happy to proceed a joint meeting then takes place.

The Mediator then works with the parties to create an agenda for the meeting, drawing out concerns and issues by agreeing what can realistically be settled by listening to the background information from all sides

The Mediator will encourage the parties to take on one issue at a time and to generate a range of options. The Mediator will explore what the parties want and what they can do about the situation. The mediator helps the parties work through their differences, manage their conflict supporting them to chart a way forward.

The Mediator will ensure that agreements that have been made about a way forward are workable and fully understood by all parties. If required the Mediator will prepare a written agreement and distribute it to the parties. If the parties require a third party to be aware of the outcome (e.g. a line manager) the Mediator will also ensure that a copy is sent to them. Any notes that were made during the sessions will be destroyed.

Preventative Training: Our Bespoke Solutions

Our comprehensive courses, meticulously crafted and presented by experienced clinicians, are deeply rooted in contemporary research and evidence-based practices. We address prevalent issues affecting employee health well-being, attendance, and engagement by targeting our sessions on some of the most common issues that negatively impact on productivity and well-being.

“What sets us apart is our commitment to a flexible, tailor-made, and innovative approach in delivering training, ensuring not only active participant engagement but also a discernible return on investment.

For organisations seeking a more personalised touch, we offer a fully bespoke service. Our team of expert clinicians are ready to design and construct training content tailored to the specific needs of your organisation or team. Whether it involves refining existing courses or creating something entirely novel, we welcome the opportunity to collaborate and build a training solution from the ground up. At Vita Health Group, we are dedicated to supporting the unique well-being needs of your workforce, promoting a healthier and more resilient workplace environment.

We deliver our training in two different formats as either a workshop or a webinar/seminar. Both formats offer flexibility by being adaptable to both online and face-to-face settings, making it easier to accommodate your team's preferences and logistical constraints.

Workshops

Our workshops are crafted to provide an immersive and interactive experience for your team. Designed to foster active participation, these sessions encourage open discussions, group activities, and real-time feedback. With a recommended maximum of 15 delegates, workshops ensure that each participant has the opportunity to actively engage, contribute, and share their insights.

Webinars/Seminars

For larger groups, our webinars and seminars offer a more structured, lecture-style format. These sessions are ideal for disseminating valuable information to a broader audience. While some may include Q&A sessions or polls to engage the audience, the level of interaction is more limited compared to workshops. Webinars and seminars are scalable, making them the preferred choice when you need to reach a larger number of employees simultaneously. They are a valuable tool for providing essential mental health and well-being content efficiently and effectively to your team.

Managing Work-Related Trauma

Hours

Workshop Only • Online or On-Site • 3 x 3 Hour Sessions

The aim of this course is to minimise the risk of employees developing ill health because of work-related trauma and stress.

The course is delivered over three 3-hour sessions, with a 2-week gap between each session. During the three sessions, delegates explore trauma in-depth: they will review the causes and affect of trauma, and have the opportunity to review, practice and reflect on a range of different CBT-based strategies to help manage or prevent trauma related ill health.

Key elements of the course include neuroanatomy; Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD); the impact of trauma on memory and sleep; how trauma impacts behaviours; and numerous different coping strategies.

It is important to have at least 2 weeks between sessions so that delegates can reflect on the strategies learnt during each session. The sessions are delivered by in-house clinicians who specialise in trauma.

Building upon the foundational knowledge covered in the employee session, this course dives deeper into change management principles and strategies. Managers will gain insights into effectively communicating change, setting a clear vision, and overcoming resistance.

With a focus on leading by example, managers will learn to inspire and motivate their teams to embrace change, fostering a culture of adaptability and collaboration.

This comprehensive training equips managers with the tools and confidence to drive successful change initiatives, ultimately enabling them to guide their teams and the organization through transformational journeys in a sustainable and positive manner.

This course can also be delivered to “change champions”, employees who may not be managers but who are identified within your team as having a positive influence and interest in personal and professional development.

Managing Work-Related Trauma

3 Hour Sessions • Workshop Only • Online or On-Site

This aim of this course is to minimise the risk of employees developing ill health because of work-related trauma and stress.

The course is delivered over three 3-hour sessions, with a 2-week gap between each session. During the three sessions, delegates explore trauma in-depth: they will review the causes and affect of trauma, and have the opportunity to review, practice and reflect on a range of different CBT-based strategies to help manage or prevent trauma related ill health.

Key elements of the course include neuroanatomy; Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD); the impact of trauma on memory and sleep; how trauma impacts behaviours; and numerous different coping strategies.

It is important to have at least 2 weeks between sessions so that delegates can reflect on the strategies learnt during each session. The sessions are delivered by in-house clinicians who specialise in trauma.

Group Supervision

Minutes

Online Session Only • Up to 6 Participants

Group Supervision offers a enriching environment for professionals to enhance their skills and address challenges collectively.

Like individual supervision, group sessions provide a platform for participants to reflect on their work, discuss cases, and receive guidance from a skilled supervisor.

The added advantage of group dynamics introduces shared learning opportunities, diverse perspectives, and peer support, fostering a supportive community where participants can gain insights from one another's experiences. This collaborative setting not only allows for the exploration of individual challenges but also encourages the exchange of best practices and collective problem-solving.

Group Supervision is a dynamic and interactive approach that leverages the collective wisdom of participants for professional development and enhanced effectiveness in their respective roles.

For effective group dynamics and active participation, the supervision groups should be no more than 6 per group.

This allows for each participant an opportunity to receive individual attention and guidance from the supervisor and means that each persons needs are addressed effectively. The smaller group also fosters a sense of trust and support which is vital to the process and promotes the safe and confidential environment where everyone in the group can share, learn, and support each other.

Individual Supervision

Minutes

Online Session Only

The individual supervision session is with a mental health clinician and offers a one-time session for individuals seeking immediate support for emotional or psychological concerns.

This type of session allows clients to discuss their feelings, experiences, or specific issues in a confidential and supportive environment.

Our experienced clinicians are trained professionals who can provide guidance and assistance with emotional regulation, coping strategies, and self-care techniques. The goal of this session is to provide immediate relief, validation, and a starting point for further exploration or referral if needed.

Manual Handling

3.5
Hours

On-Site Workshop Only

This is a highly engaging and practical workshop. Delegates understand how to minimise the root-cause of musculoskeletal conditions and accidents at work.

A key focus is for employees to take responsibility for their own health, safety and wellbeing. They will also understand how to complete dynamic risk assessments and implement all key JLR policies and procedures.

Half of this workshop is dedicated to practical activities, during which delegates use problem-based learning and critical analysis to recognise how to optimise their manual handling techniques.

The practical activity needs to be completed in a 'real world environment', using the equipment, and tools that they would use as part of their work tasks. This ensures skills are transferable and can be implemented effectively to ensure safer behaviours.
